

Operation Tucson - USA v. Robbin Shea Brown, et al.

The following defendants were indicted by a federal grand jury on October 26, 2005, in Tucson, Arizona, for committing a wide variety of criminal activities, including the electronic theft of personal identifying information relating to credit and debit card accounts. It is alleged that a further part of the conspiracy was to format and encode stolen credit and debit card numbers and associated personal identification numbers onto plastic cards with magnetic strips, thereby creating counterfeit credit and debit cards. Defendants and their co-conspirators allegedly used counterfeit cards to withdraw money from ATMs and ACMS in and around Tucson, Arizona, from on or about September 2003 to June 2005.
